AN UTTER COLLAPSE.

Parnell's Friends as Well as Enemies Unable to Recover From

THE EFFECT OF PIGOTT'S FIASCO.

Tories Knocked All of a Heap, And the Home Rulers Very Happy, but

UNAWARE OF THE FULL VALUE OF IT.

The Grand Old Man Returns to England Even Grander Than When He Left.

The Pigott fiasco in the Times case against Parnell has knocked the Tories silly. It is stated that should a general election occur in England to-day the home rule people would sweep the platter clean. The profits of the late Thunderer have been greatly reduced. Parnell's friends seem as much dazed as his enemies by the suddenness of the blow which has betallen the prosecutors in the case before the com-

(BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH. LONDON, February 23 .- [Copyright.]-The comical state of mental depressiwhich just now characterizes the Tory ranks is highly gratifying to the good. From the beginning the Tory confidence in the alleged Parnell letters has been unbounded, for Tories don't reason very much. They simply said to themselves: "The Times wouldn't go in for this sort of thing unless it was sure that Irishmen are all born bad. and naturally sympathize with murder from very instinct. 'The Times will first show how bad Irishmen, and particularly patriotic Irishmen, are, and will wind up by proving Parnell to be unusually bad, by pinning to his name forever the authorship of those letters." But things have gone wrong. The Times it seems, has even more easily been beguiled than its average reader. This grand scheme for wiping out the Irish party looked well through Tory glasses, but now it proves that the Times and its case, with the Tory hopes, all rested on the shoulders of Mr. Pigott, and this gentleman, while a willing perjurer, is but a weak-kneed Atlas, not up to the weight required of him.

ALL DONE IN A HEAP. The Times and the Tories have come down in a heap together, and haven't yet recovered their breath. Such an utter collapse hasn't been heard of. for many a year, and even Parnell's supporters, confident as they were of his eventual triumph, hardly realize yet the importance of their victory, and of the blow which the Government has received with such unexpected suddenness.

The average Tory gentleman, so eager a few weeks ago to prove by argument the genuineness of the Parnell forgeries, wishes now to be left alone. Occasionally one can be found to declare in manly fashion his disgust that an institution like the Times should have been capable of trying to ruin the character even of a political opponent on such miserable testimony. But the average reply of a Tory, when asked his opinion, is that he has not been following the Parnell Commission very closely of late.

One of the happiest men at the trial has been Labouchere, who, with his thin voice, is fond of making a resume of the aspects of the case and of the Times' stupidity, thus: "You see, these people-Walters and the rest-seem to have started out on the sunposition that when a man forges a document he makes it as unlike the real as possible. So they thought their moderately clumsy orgeries very good property."

CREDIT WHERE DUE.

George Lewis deserves, perhaps, most of the credit for the able working up of the Parnellite side of the case. He has worked night and day, and is credited in the pron with having eclipsed his own deeds and all the other solicitors in the case. It is probable he will go into the witness box and swear that Pigott admitted to him that he (Pigott) personally forged the letters.

There is some speenlation as to the ultimate fate of Mr. Pigott, purveyor of the forgeries. The only question of real interest seems to be, will be run away before the commission meets on Tuesday, or will he wait until Sir Charles Russell, having finished with him, shall have him arrested for perjury? The latter course seems most perjury? The latter course seems most probable, for being at his own request under police protection, and also at someone clse's request (probably Hannen's), under the supervision of Scotland Yard, he would have to deceive three pairs of eyes in order to get away. There will be no difficulty about giving him a satisfactory term of hard labor, for the immunity extended by the law creating the commission to those who may be recalled to testify doesn't extend to perjurers.

THE REVULSION OF FEELING.

That the Government must suffer greatly as a result of this fiasco is apparent. There is a great revulsion of feeling among fair-minded Englishmen, and it is more than ever certain that the result of a general elec-tion now would be to bundle the Tories and Unionists out of power together.

The Times will be punished, as it richly deserves. In the first place, it will be com-pelled to abandon for some time the role of Thunderer and of Counselor and Guide to the British nation. In a financial way, the blow is a very heavy one. First and last, the forgery publishing business, which has failed so miserably, will cost the Times at least £100,000, and the suits which Parnell is bringing in Ireland and Scotland may, if persisted in, cost as much more. The state-ment is going about that Mr. Walters will pay all this money out of his own pocket, even should he have to sell his estate, Bearwood, to prevent the Times stockholders suffering through his stupidity and that of Buckle, Macdonald & Co., his assistants. This statement, however, hasn't a very genuine ring about it.

A TERRIBLE TUMBLE.

Young Walters, who owns one-sixteenth of the Times, has received about £16 divi-dends for this year. The usual profit, an-nually divided among the Times owners, is upwards of £90,000. The teelings of the Times owners, who have lost all that and got only Pigott in return, can be quite easily imagined.

Outside of the Times torgery case, the good home rule cause is going on well all around. There has been an election, and, as usual, a Gladstonian victory in East Perthshire. Not only did home rule wip. but with 500 more votes than the successful candidate had in 1886.

The Grand Old Man has come home cheerier, ruddier, straighter, and in all ways much grander than when he went away, which is a good sign for Ireland, and the home rule members, Irish and English, with many of whom I talked on the open-ing day of Parliament, have come back to business full of fight, and will not be slow to impress on the people the character of the men and government who bolster up their cause with forgery, and from sheer lack of brains fall so flat.

COMMENTS OF THE LONDON PRESS. Nearly All the Papers Think the Prosecu-ter's Case is Knecked Out. LONDON, February 23 .- The Pall Mall Gazette, which on the 16th said, in commenting on the proceedings of the Parnell commission that if Pigott was the Apostle Paul, his solitary word might suffice to sus-

the Parnellite members of the House of Commons, in its issue to-day says:
Pigot has not been an Apostle Paul. The dismay in Downing street must be only a degree less than that which prevails in the Times office. There is not a Tory to-day who is not feeling beartsick at the evidence of the witness on whose veracity and unimpeachable reputation the Times' case absolutely depends.

The Gazette points out that even the Unionist papers, the Telegraph and the Chronicle, admit that the Times' case has collapsed, the Chronicle even stating that every one expected that Sir Charles Russell every one expected that Sir Charles Russell would apply to the Court for Pigott's committal or detention. Continuing, the Gazette says:

If the conviction has now slowly filtered into the minds of Mr. Walter and his staff that they have been cruelly hoaxed by an ingenious and resourceful blackmailer, the only course open to them is to publicly own that they have been deceived, and withdraw their allegations, offer the handsomest apology, and pay the costs deceived, and withdraw their allegations, other the handsomest apology, and pay the costs they have forced upon the men whom they traduced on Pigott's authority.

The Star, Mr. T. P. O'Connor's paper, ommenting on Pigott's evidence, says: The connection between the Times and the Government is twofoid. The Government created first the commission, and second the Times case. If Attorney General Webster had Times case. If Attorney General Webster had not been enabled to play the parts of prosecutor, judge and framer of the indictment, there could have been no tribunal at all. If he had not assured Lord Salisbury that the letters would be proved to be genuine, the comission would not have been created, and the Unionists would never have suffered such a blow as by their own piteous admissions awaits them. The Government chose the game, loaded the dice, selected its partners, and arranged the rules of the game, and it must pay up now. The price is the dissolution of Parliament. We want to know what the country thinks of Pigott.

The Globe and St. James' Gazette make no allusions to the subject.

MRS. CHURCH WEEPS.

The fair Plaintiff in the Celebrated Divorce Case Greatly Affected-The Defendant on the Stand-He Denies Everything.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] COLUMBUS, O., February 23. - The Church divorce trial was this evening adjourned to Monday morning, with Colonel Church, the defendant, on the stand. His direct examination has not yet been completed. Before the defendant was called, C. D. Firestone was examined to show Colonel Church had used "cuss words" on one occasion, when he failed to secure an elec-tion as delegate to the Chicago Conven-

Walter S. Church, a brother of the defendant, who resides at Pittsburg, was the next witness. He had visited his brother about once every two months, and was there Saturday night and Sunday before the sep-aration. He had observed that his brother was always a kind and affectionate husband. He had never seen the child, Ruth, punished by his brother. During his last visit at his brother's home, he thought Mrs. Church did not take the same interest in her husband that sheeformerly had.

The next witness was Arthur P. Kennedy, an attorney of Pittsburg, a friend of the defendant for the past 17 years, and was "best man" at the wedding. He has visited Mr. and Mrs. Church frequently since the marriage. He had never seen Colone Church quarrel with anyone. Speaking of the husband and wife, Mr. Kennedy said they always seemed to be affectionate, and there seemed to be a great deal of happiness The cross-examination turned to the matter of the witness' visit to the Joyce residence. Mr. Kennedy said that the first information he had of any differences between the husband and wife was the day after the separation occurred. On that day he re-ceived a telegram from the Colonel, asking him to come to Columbus immediately, as he had business of importance for him. The Colonel met him at Newark, and went to the Joyce home to see Mrs. Church, as the agent of his friend, for a particular purpose. The defendant had admitted to witness that he called his wife a — fool.

Colonel Church took the stand about 3 P.

M. He said when his wife was away they wrote letters to each other almost every day. A bundle of letters were handed plaintiff, which he identified as those which he had written to his wife while she was in Florida and Atlantic City. They were offered as evidence, and after one or two of them had been read, Mrs. Church was greatly affected, and had to be taken from the room. There were eight of the letters, and those portions referring to his wife direct were couched in the most endearing terms. The Colonel repeated his statement as to the expenditure of $13,000 for household ex-penses during their married life, and entered a general denial of all charges of cruelty and infidelity made by the plaintiff.

HOW CHANGES WERE MADE.

Postmaster General Dickinson Gives Out Some Interesting Figures.

DANIELS IN DEFENSE.

The Virginia Senator Vigorously Repels His Colleague's Scathing

He is Speedily Answered by Hear, Who Makes the Assertion That

ATTACKS ON SOUTHERN STATES.

THERE WILL BE A NEGRO REVOLUTION. It Will be One of Blood and Horror if the Present System is Not Changed.

Yesterday in the Senate was devoted to the consideration of election outrages. Senator Daniels made a speech five hours in length defending the course of the Southern States. He asserted that whatever crimes were committed in that section were mainly the work of the negroes. Senator Hoar made a forcible reply to these assertions.

WASHINGTON, February 23 .- The Senate to-day resumed consideration of the resolution as to alleged election outrages, and Mr. Daniels spoke in opposition to the resolution. Having alluded to the Demo-cratic charges of bribery in New York during the recent election, of the purchase of voters in Indiana "in blocks of five," and of the colonization of aliens in West Virginia, as well as to the contrary charges made by the Republicans, he asked what a pandemonium, what a terrible suspense what a paralysis of business would have followed had not State rights exercised their conservative and healing sway.

General Harrison's title of President, he said, which had been sealed and delivered to him, was not given to him by a nation. or by a majority of its people, but by sovereign States which had commissioned him as their Chief Magistrate. State rights, he said, had held the ladder for General Har-rison to ascend the Presidental chair; had given Senators their prerogatives; and had lifted the Republican party out of the Slough of Despond, and over the Hill of Difficulty, and brought it within sight of the goal of its desires.

A VERY FAIR BRIDGE.

It was an old axiom that the traveler must praise the bridge which carried him over the stream, and now that the States rights bridge had carried the Republican party safely over the turbulent stream of conflict, it was time for that party to confess that, after all, it was a pretty good bridge. He had been amazed and astound-ed when he read Mr. Hoar's resolution, gravely requiring the Senate to enter into an inquiry of the election of members of the House of Representatives.

If anything more un-American or more in conflict with the spirit of the American Constitution could have been suggested, he was at a loss to conjecture what the thing was. The resolution was revolutionary, as it indicated a tendency on the part of the Senate to usurp the functions of the House of Representatives. It was a resolution to impeach the character of a sovereign State -a resolution which sought to undermine one of the pillars of the Federal Government, and to obliterate from the nationa flag one of its glittering stars.

No evidence had been reported to the Senate in support of the resolution-nothing had been presented but anonymous letters and petitions of defeated candidates for Hampshire, in order to prejudice the judgment of the Senate, and poison the minds of the Northern people, had had those letters and petitions filed in his speech. ANONYMOUS LETTERS.

The post bag of anonymous letters, he said, had been emptied on the Senate floor by the Senator from New Hampshire, and then another post bag of old and new news-paper scraps had been emptied on it. He would like to know if the Senate of the cise of a somewhat judicial function) what no court would do and what no fair man would do.

If there was any Republican Senator istening to him who was ready to speak for the Committee on Privileges and Elections, he would like to know from him whether those newspaper scraps and those anonymous letters, and those petitions from defeated candidates for office, were the basis on which that committee had predicated its indictment of Louisiana? If they were not the rocks on which the committee had built the rocks on which the committee had built its edifica he begged leave, most respectfully, to inquire on what the committee did

He did not wonder that there was not Republican Senator to answer the question. He (Mr. Daniels), had some newspaper ex-tracts which he would send to the clerk to have read—not as proof of anything, but as straws floating on the great wave of public opinion. It would be seen from them that all the criminals south of Mason and Dixon's line were not those whose skin was of the same complexion as that of Republican Senators. SOME OTHER OUTRAGES. The clerk proceeded to read newspaper extracts descriptive of a negro riot in Norfolk, Va., of the shooting of a policeman by a negro in Charlottsville and and of another murder by a negro on the Roanoke and Tarrivers. The clerk was reading an account of the latter murder when (Mr. Daniels yielding for that purpose) Mr. Harris moved an adjournment. The vote was taken by yeas and nays, and there were yeas 12, nays 22.

Mr. Daniels dispensed with the further reading of the newspaper extracts. saying that he would embody them in the report of his speech. He repeated the question, Mr. Hoar being now in his seat, which he had asked before, as to what facts had been re-ported to the Committee on Privileges and Elections that raised the doubt whether or not Louisiana was in possession of a Republican form of government.

Mr. Hoar said there was abundant constitutional authority for the proposed investigation. As to the specter of States rights, sought to be called up; there was no such question in the resolution. What was assailed was not local self-government.

ONE FACT AT LEAST. It was government, generally, which the Senator from Virginia and his associates were trying to break down in this country. That Senator had asked what facts were dewithin six weeks a man, who was contesting a seat in the other House, had been shot down while he was making his contest? Did he not know the history of political offenses all over certain States in the South? Gen-eral Sheridan had declared some years since that more Republicans had been murdered for their political opinions in the State of Louisiana alone than had fallen in battle a seat in the other House, had been shot on both sides in the Mexican War. Mr. Hoar went on to comment on the smallness of Congressional yotes in the Southern States, and gave figures to show that, while, two years ago the vote for delegate in disfranchised Dakota was over 140, 000, the aggregate votes of 25 Congressional districts in the South were only 93,000. It seemed to him that, in those facts alone, there was reason enough to make the proposed inquiry.

He quoted from Senator Morgan's article in the Forum under the heading, "Shall Negro Majorities Rule?" and asked what that Negro Majorities Rule?" and asked what that question meant. There was no such thing, he said, as "negro" in the view of constitutional rights; and the question meant nothing more nor less than "Shall majorities rule?" He denied that there was anything sectional in his proposition, or that it meant an attack upon the State of Louisiana. If the charge ana. If the charges were true, that State was lying helpless and bound at the feet of band of conspirators.

BLOOD AND HORROR. The charges were not that Louisians had been done wrong, but that Louisiana was suffering wrong. In further commenting upon Mr. Morgan's magazine article Mr. Hoar eulogized Southern gentlemen for their bravery, intelligence, constancy and other good qualities, but he warned them that within the lifetime of some who listened to him there would be 50,000,000 negroes dwelling in the Southern States, and that if the methods reported were persisted that, if the methods reported were persisted in, the white people of the South were sow-ing a seed from which was to come a har-vest of horror and blood to which the French revolution, or that of St. Domingo, was light in comparison.

The people of the North were anxious to aid the South in every possible way if the South would only receive that help and not spurn it.

Mr. Daniels criticised Mr. Hoar's speech as having contained no response to the ques-tion asked him. As the Senator from Mas-sachusetts had proclaimed that his resolution was non-sectional, he should ask him, ere was non-sectional, he should use him, ere the resolution was voted upon, to insert a provision to have that condition of things in Ohio inquired into regarding the treatment of colored children in connection with

At this point of his speech (after having spoken nearly five hours) Mr. Daniels yielded for a motion to go into executive session. That motion, however, was not pressed, and after a notice that resolutions as to the death of Representative Burns, of Missouri, would be called up at 3 o'clock on Monday, the Senate adjourned.

BLOWN UP BY BOMBS.

Particulars of the Daring Train Robbery in California-A Car Overturned by Dynamite-Searching for the Bold Operators.

DELANO, CAL., February 23.—Coroner Buckrass to-day held an inquest over the body of Charles F. Cabert, the young man killed in the train robbery near Pixley, Cal., last evening. He was a native of West Virginia, aged 20 years, and was instantly killed. Testimony given by P. T. Bolger, engineer, and C. J. Alder, fireman showed that when leaving Pixley two masked men boarded the engine with shot guns and ordered the engineer to pull out.

They fired a shot when two miles out and ordered the engineer to slow down.

The engineer and firemen were taken back by the robbers to the express car, and a bomb was thrown under the car. The explosion nearly turned the car over. The messenger came out when ordered. One of the robbers entered the car, while the other held the fireman, engineer and messenger under cover. Meanwhile Brakeman Gabert came up on one side of the car and Bentley came up on the other side of the car to see cause of the delay. When they were ap-proaching one robber exclaimed "Stop," and fired. Brakeman Gabert received a heavy load of buckshot in the heart and head, killing him instantly.

The robbers then reached under the car and fired at the other party. Bentley was struck by several shot in the abdomen and right arm. The robbers then marched the three men upon the engine and backed away into the darkness. It was thought that the affair was not the work of professionals, as it was needlessly murderous. The robbers secured only $400. Armed parties are scouring the country in search of Mothers, if you enjoy a beautiful sight, then come in and take a look at these little garments. We have also received and just placed on sale an excellent line of Misses' spring long garments. Many exclusive novelties among them.

Our Hat Department, always first in introducing the new styles of headgear to the gentlemen of Pittsburg, is now radiant with quite a number of early spring styles. Of Derbys we have Miller's new spring shape, Youman's new spring shape, and the latest "Little English" Hat; we have placed them in stock at $1 98 and $2 50. After awhile the so-called tony Hatters will "introduce" the same goods for $3 and $4. The same may be said of our new Broadway and Knox shape Silk Hats. As soon as the other "leading" houses will get them (about two weeks from now), watch what they will sell them for. It'll be a cool 50 per cent above our prices.

Our Shoe buyers, who are now "doing" the New York and New England Shoe towns, are sending us big shipments of new spring goods daily. Everything is bought in large quantities, and paid for in spot cash. The special terms we are thus accorded by the manufacturers enable us in turn to undersell every shoe house in this city. This accounts for the phenomenally large shoe trade we have built up within a comparatively few years. This argument is beyond contradiction. Depend upon it, you virtually ignore your own interest in buying your shoes outside of Kaufmanns'. "It's never too late to mend;" if you've never bought your Shoes from us, do so

Other new arrivals at our store are several hundred of Spring Overcoats. Gentlemen, wishing to dress in the acme of style at small expense, should see these truly gorgeous garments. Our grand display of spring Neckwear, too, must not be forgotten. A more brilliant array of silk scarfs and four-in-hands was never seen anywhere. Make your selections now, gentlemen, and get the cream of our stock.

Amid all this excitement and activity attending the arrival of new spring styles the balance of our winter stock comes in for a large share of attention. Our counters must be cleared of what still remains upon them from the fall and winter seasons. To accomplish our end we have split prices in half. If elegant Suits, Overcoats or Pantaloons at 50c on the dollar are an inducement to you then be sure and buy this week.
